THE HISTORY OF EWOOD PARK

The Blackburn Rovers club was formed in 1875 following a meeting on November 5th in St Leger Hotel on King William Street, Blackburn. The meeting was organised by two old boys of Shrewsbury School, John Lewis and Arthur Constantine. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the possibility of forming a football club to play under Association rules. Seventeen people attended the meeting, the majority of whom were Blackburn Grammar School old boys.

Rovers' first game, which took place at Church on 11th December 1875, was reported as a 1-1 draw by the Blackburn Times.

The Club's first ground was located at Oozehead. The ground had many issues, including a watering hole near the centre circle. The team overcame the difficulty by the strategic placing of timber boards and turf over the hole for the duration of the match. The team then decided to move to Pleasington Cricket Ground, and then onto Alexandra Meadows.

Blackburn Rovers became one of the 23 football clubs to form the Lancashire Football Association in 1878. They played in the FA Cup for the first time in 1879, beating Tyne Association Football Club 5-1.

Rovers played their first ever game at Ewood Park in 1881 (when it was known as Ewood Bridge), against Sheffield Wednesday on the 9th April 1881.

Ewood Park was built as a multi-sport venue, hosting football, athletics and dog racing. The Rovers Community deemed Ewood Park was the ideal venue for the club after having already played numerous games there. Ewood Park then became Rovers official home ground, with the first game being against Accrington on 13th September 1890. The result was 0-0, and was viewed by 10,000 people.

Soon after, Blackburn Rovers became founding members of the Football League in 1888. Bob Crompton began playing for Blackburn Rovers in 1897-98. This was the start of his 45 year association with the club.

Throughout the 20th century, the stadium has seen many redevelopments. Improvements were made in the 1910s, 1920s, and 1950s, with floodlights installed in 1958, the Darwen End built in 1890 and the Riverside Stand erected in 1913. The most significant changes, however, took place in 1990.

In 1990, the stadium capacity was increased to 31,367, as it saw a new stand in the west side of the stadium, which is named the Jack Walker Stand, in honour of the clubs owner at the time. From 1991 to 2000, Walker was the owner of Blackburn Rovers. He was born and raised in Blackburn, and is regarded as one of the most prosperous club owners in English football history.

The investment that Walker brought to Rovers enabled the club to go from a mid-table team to a Premier League Champions by securing players like Alan Shearer, Chris Sutton and Tim Sherwood.

In recent years, Ewood Park hasn't just been the home to Blackburn Rovers. It has also been a venue for music concerts and other events for the local people living in Blackburn. Ongoing developments are being made to modernise and enhance the stadium, including concourse areas, modern amenities, whilst still having a nod to the history that can be found all around Ewood Park.
